

SARDINE PLANT TO REOPEN

But Rockland Plant Can Operate On Only Half Of Usual Capacity

Rockland Packing Company announced this morning that it will reopen the plant at once and will operate at one-half its usual capacity.

The curtailed operation is necessitated by the damage caused by sabotage to one of the plants two flaking machines Aug. 28. The machinery has so been rearranged that the remaining machine may be used and the plant put in operation.

In an advertisement, elsewhere in this edition, the management thanks loyal employees for their interests in the organization and their acts of kindness during the past two weeks.

A GREAT DAY FOR G.O.P.

Republican Candidates Have Tremendous Majorities—Rockland, Appleton and Washington Go Wet—Bell Winner In Only Knox County Contest

KNOX COUNTY RESULTS

The Republicans carried every town in the county by majorities which were in some instances overwhelming. Particularly was this the case in North Haven which voted for Hildreth 90 to 5, and Union where Clark, the Democratic candidate for Governor received only three of the 155 votes cast. Rockland Warren was in the "overwhelming" class with 190 Hildreth votes against 26 for Clark.

As was expected practically every town in the county voted against the two bonus propositions.

Appleton and Washington were the only towns outside of Rockland where third prevailed. Both towns are "found in the wet column."

Due to belated returns from Ward 1, the complete results in Knox County were not available until close to the midnight.

The first inkling came from Oliver Hamlin in Ward 2, and the first outside town to report was South Thomaston, with Dave Pollock on the information end. All of the Courier-Gazette's correspondents were loyal and promptly on the job and merit this paper's thanks, as do Sheriff Ludwick and County Attorney Burgess who received the telephone returns, and Clerk of Courts Griffin, who tabulated them, and Fred C. Black, who lent valuable aid as statistician.

Local interest centered upon the wet and dry question and a crowd thronged The Courier-Gazette office until he last ward had been heard from.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

Taking advantage of The Courier-Gazette's advertised offer, a Vinalhaven subscriber has paid ahead to 1952.

One year ago, Rockland voted 1170 to 568 to accept the city manager form of government. Ward 6 was the only close ward, going but five majority for the plan. The Maine State Townsends held a conference at the Community Building with 200 present. Hall's Cabins at Glen Cove were sold to Richard Miller of West Medford, Mass.—Ernest P. Herriek, 65, died in Camden.

It has been a long time since I heard from my friend Col. Frank P. Sibley (formerly Ed. Pointer of the Boston Globe) but frequent inquiries are made concerning him. I agree with Uncle Josh of the Plymouth (N. H.) Record, who hopes he will be able to again tackle that interesting and witty department.

Caribou will continue daylight saving until Oct. 20, and Presque Isle to Oct. 15, as an aid to potato picking. Summer time, generally, ends the last Sunday of this month, and that's long enough for the average Rockland person.

Gladioli have replaced geraniums in the window of the McRae investment office. Bound to look pretty.

YOUR FAVORITE POEM

If I had my life to live again I would have made a rule to read some poetry and listen to some music at least once a week. The loss of these tastes is a loss of happiness.—Charles Darwin.

THE SOUL
Come, Brother, turn with me from pinning thought,
And all the inward ill that sin has wrought;
Come, send abroad a love for all who live,
And feel the deep content in turn they give.
Kind wishes and good deeds—they make not poor:
They'll come again, full laden, to thy door.
—Tennyson.

Book Review

Dinner At The White House. Author, Louis Adamic. Harper and Brothers, Publishers, New York.

This book, written in the intimate and clear sincerity of all the political good advice given by this brilliant writer, is the latest of Louis Adamic sound advice to a thinker and un-thinking world of readers.

He senses the vital importance of international good will, and unbiased procedure if life is to take on the best elements of peace. This writer is a student of world action and needs, few there are who are better qualified to give advice.

His book subject is based on the meeting at the White House of the then Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt, when Mr. Adamic and wife were guests. He asks: "Was P.D.R. a great man?" the world knows Winston Churchill is an expert on his retirement from his high position, England has really had a weak man scrambling about, and unable to make headway!

However, this book gives inside views of the relationship of the two men heading great nations. Today we are all in an outrageous predicament and Louis Adamic makes many clear suggestions for our help and influence in future years. You fall in your patriotic duty if you do not study his line of procedure.

—Kathleen S. Fuller.

"Must We Fight Russia?" by Ely Culbertson. Published in April by the John Winston Company, Philadelphia.

This is still the most pressing question of our time and is answered by an American expert on foreign affairs, who knows Russia as well as his own country.

This book is really a challenge to every thinking American and there is deep study for our thinking people and action. Must we keep on standing idly by from Russia. While she keeps busy arming and while we are trying to have peace?

This analysis is called the greatest in the world and who knows both the Russian and the American people.

This is a book to read for insight into the Russians' line of thought.

You will find here a clear and simple outline of the issues before the world and in so simple style given that the layman can digest it. As good as you to be familiar with as when busy arming in April.

—Kathleen S. Fuller.

"The Fire Of The Lord." A novel by Norman Nicholson. E. P. Dutton & Company, New York.

Again an English author whose interest in many things such as activities, music, festivals and all kinds of sports, is generally known to his country. His literary achievements are several and his popularity was broadcast by his first publication "Five Rivers."

This story is set against a background of the bleak English winter, with characters drawn from natural conditions and persons.

This is written in the high tradition of the fine novels of English birth, and is a powerful and clear depiction of man's religious nature in contact with his carnal desires. It is not by any means entirely imaginary.

The book evokes thought, and that is what is needed in this age of selfish desires, and lack of the earlier heroic and staunch natures whose strength made for best effort in our nation. Read and be convinced.

—Kathleen S. Fuller.

Deborah. Author, Marian Castle. This is a novel in the high American tradition, and the first book from an author whose talent stems from the words of writers as Zora Gale and Willa Cather.

It is the story of a great-hearted woman, who loved life and got much out of every day.

Deborah Seerle is young and her home was on the Dakota prairies. She was equipped not only with beauty but with a goodly amount of brains and she was well aware of this fact and hitched her wagon to a star.

She pledged herself to the task of getting what she could from life, both drama and excitement. This story vies with the desire of every full blooded American girl who has ambition.

Deborah, you will find in the heroine of love and optimism. She will give you a good time in the reading of a worthwhile book.

—Kathleen S. Fuller.

"Trait's Mauntain." Author Showell Styles. The McMillan Company, New York.

This author is English born, and a lieutenant commander in the English Navy. He wrote this novel while serving in the Mediterranean.

While he was only half through the story, the ship he was on was torpedoed and sank in less than one minute. The author was in the water four hours and acquired for his next chapter what he termed a reliable brand of local color.

The wild mountain country of North Wales is the background of this thriller in the recent war. The Fifth Column of the Axis whose chief leaders are the sinister so-called Mehram, with a traitor Englishman.

The story holds your attention with a tight grip, and much is actual. The places written of are there. Much salt air and sea-mist is shared in this tale and if you enjoy creepy feeling up your spine and reading of hair-breadth escapes, you will enjoy this well-told story, full up with ingenious imagination and real adventure.

—Kathleen S. Fuller.

COUNTRY
Now that the Knox County baseball season is over, and the fans have paid their well earned tribute to the victorious Camden Shells, full attention may be given to the climax afforded by the major leagues.

The result in the American League has been a foregone conclusion and several hundred thousand avid sport fans are wondering if they will be fortunate enough to land tickets for the World Series which will be played in part at Fenway Park, Boston. As to the championship of the National League the winner may not be determined until the last week, or possibly the last day. The St. Louis Cardinals are pointing the way at the present moment, but are due to finish in the East where the toughest kind of opposition may be expected from the Brooklyn Dodgers who are but two games behind at this writing. A series between the Dodgers and Red Sox would be the more colorful one, but the Boston team is prepared to stake the situation in stride, and to win the world championship, whether the foe be the Dodgers or the Cardinals. Everything else will be relegated to second place while that classic is in progress.

We have a sigh of relief when we read in yesterday morning's Bangor Daily News that the strike of the composing room operators had been settled by a compromise wage agreement. The Bangor News-press we have always looked upon as one of the best daily newspapers in New England—altogether too good a paper to be out of commission account of a wage dispute.

BANGOR NEWS
SETTLES
ITS STRIKE
Well, the curtain has rung down on State Elections for two years, but State politics will continue to be very much in the van, while candidates for the governorship are jockeying for position in the June primaries of 1948, a year which will be fraught with political importance due to the fact that another presidential election will be held, preceded by at least one national convention whose outcome no man is now wise enough to judge. It might well be a year for torchlight processions and flag raisings, such as used to create real political enthusiasm.

NOW FOR POLITICAL SKIRMISHES
Let them say what they will about their equinoxes, autumn doesn't always wait. A mist on the meadow in the morning, a feeling almost of frost in the air, and, some days, "It might as well be fall." But the phlox that lights the garden through the relative boredom of August still crowds the beds. Do we need further proof that summer is still very much with us? Then behold it in those extremely foresighted "ads" that sellers of fur coats regularly print while prospective wearers are still in bathing suits.

BRINGS
Despite these seasonal certainties, however, that breath of autumn makes one look at the calendar again. And, sure enough, it won't be long now. That meadow mist and frosty feeling are warnings that spies have crossed the frontiers of summer. They are planning golden ruin where the maple stands. They are plotting with the chrysanthemums to supplant summer's banners with harder colors. Rumors rustle in the trees. For a moment a man feels an orderly and provident impulse to telephone the cord-wood dealer, or to find out what good coal for fireplace grates will cost this year. But then he checks himself, as if on the verge of a premature surrender. "Mother," he calls, "get out the picnic basket. Johnny, don't forget your water wings. I'm going down to the service station and get gas for the car." Like an army called upon to make a last stand, the family responds. And the spies of autumn, seeing resistance to their plots mounting, retreat for a while. —Christian Science Monitor.

Had Narrow Escape

Collision In Rockport Yesterday Sent Two Persons To Hospital

Mrs. Maynard Metcalf and her five-months-old baby escaped death by a narrow margin yesterday when they were thrown from a car operated by Mr. Metcalf at the Junction of South and Rockville streets in Rockport.

According to State Police Officer Henry Roper, the Metcalf car was in collision with another operated by Miss Norma White of Camden. The Metcalf baby was thrown from the car, across a stone wall and into a field. The mother, also thrown from the car, struck the stone wall.

Both were treated by Dr. Oram Lawry, Jr., and were hospitalized briefly for examination but later returned to their homes.

Miss White's mother, Mrs. Mabel White, sustained scalp wounds, but was not hospitalized.

land once more. Speaking at the concluding session of the association Monday, Senator Owen Brewster stated that "the nation and the rest of the world should get better sense than to believe that the United States can feed the world indefinitely."

Speaking before the final meeting of the Maine Independent Grocers and Food Dealers Association, Brewster criticized the U. S. Department of Agriculture's proposal that Maine plow under its potato surplus.

"With the United States trying to make peace in a world largely starving for the want of food," he said, "the Department of Agriculture proposes that Maine bury its surplus crop this fall."

"Such a suggestion," he added, "recalls to mind that the New Deal created shortages of cotton and pork through its early policy of plowing cotton under and slaughtering baby pigs."

The ladies auxiliary of the association held their annual business session at the same time during which the regular association session was in progress. Elected to

Hamilton's Letter

A Former Vinalhaven Man Makes Comments Relating To Sardine Strike

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—I suppose that business men and our so called congressional leadership will say that our fishermen and packers were responsible for the strike which Rockland recently experienced.

Representative Fellows, over a year ago said that he had proof from executives that they could not continue packing sardines if they were obliged to pay time and one-half for over time and to meet new sanitation regulation.

I took up the problems of seasonal workers with Representative Fellows last fall at National Labor Convention in Washington. It was obvious that he had not studied the worker's problem in a seasonal industry, or if he had, he accepted the long hours and small pay as a legitimate part of the existing economic order.

However, I did not hear Representative Fellows voice any objections to the increase granted per case on sardines nor to the onerous tax bill which Congress passed "to aid the greedy and not the needy."

It is needless to say that when our legislators' interests are so one-sided, favorable conditions cannot be expected for the working man. In this Rockland strike we have the leaders of an important industry actually declaring a starvation strike against the workers. It is these leaders who can afford to strike, bloated as they are with lush profits of the war years.

Representative Margaret Smith attacked the Wagner Act in an article in The Courier-Gazette during the coal strike which involved John L. Lewis and his miners. Though the Rockland strike the principle is involved. I deny the validity of the Congresswoman's statement that labor is abusing the principles of collective bargaining. When has labor been able to close a plant completely and walk away with a bulging purse? This is a distinction reserved for those like owners of the Rockland sardine packing industry, well backed by their vested interest in Congress.

What recently happened in Rockland is loud and brazen for organized labor to take over. In the words of Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts "Labor still has a war to fight to preserve its gains and to obtain justice for every working man and woman." With the advent of organized labor industry will be forced to polish its relics in Congress or to loose them altogether.

VINALHAVEN ADVENTURISTS

Chaplain Devore who will preach and sing at the Advent Christian Church in Vinalhaven Oct. 16-20, is a native of Bangor, and a graduate of the New England School of Theology in Brookline, Mass. He has served as pastor in the Advent Christian Church in West Princeton, and later in Portland. From this place he entered the service and has served as army chaplain in the South Pacific. He entered Japan with the invasion forces in August, 1945. During his stay there he took many kodachrome pictures which he will show as slides. He is just returning to civilian life and is now living with his wife and two young sons in Portland while framing his future plans.

Association officials gave much credit to Earle Perry of the Rockland Wholesale Grocery Co. who was largely responsible for the success of the convention in that he had made the greater part of the preliminary arrangements and provisions for housing of the grocers, both at the Samoset and in Rockland hotels, rooming houses and private homes.

The popularity of Shakespeare's plays is increasing in Russia. Last year 212 performances of these plays were performed. "Romeo and Juliet" is the second choice. "Othello" leads them all.

The Rotary Club

Prof. Charles A. Holden Defines Only Safe Bulwark of Continuing Liberty

"The only sane bulwark of continuing liberty is a government strong enough to protect the interests of the people and a people strong enough and well enough informed to maintain a sovereign control of its government," said Charles A. Holden, Professor of Civil Engineering Emeritus of Dartmouth College in addressing the weekly meeting of Rockland Rotary Club at Hotel Rockland last Friday.

Introduced by Charles T. Smalley, chairman of the program committee for the month, Mr. Holden was described as well qualified to discuss the topic of his address "World Federation" because of close study of political affairs and extensive travel in foreign countries. "The speaker," said the chairman, "has visited 53 Rotary Clubs in 11 countries. He was in Milan when the Italian army invaded Ethiopia; in Budapest when Hitler entered the Rhineland; in Florence when Mussolini marched into Albania; in Edinburgh when the past was signed between Germany and Russia; in Rotterdam when England and France declared war on Germany; and in Athens when the city was sunk off the coast of Ireland."

Prof. Holden has been a regular attendant upon the meetings of the Rockland Club while spending the Summer at Spruce Head and Monhegan and was welcomed by a wave of applause from the assembled gathering of members and guests.

Continuing, he said "for peace, there must be nothing less than the abolition of war. If we wish peace we must prepare for peace not war. The only protection against the atomic bomb is peace. I can see but three possible results for the future—first a world federation which is an extension to the world of the principles of the United States federation, whose function is to maintain peace; second, a subjugation by one world power of all the other world powers so that at a long time there will be no wars—not peace but serfdom. Third, destruction of civilization, along dark ages, or total destruction, annihilation."

In discussing the progress which the world federation movement has attained the speaker said the Legislature of his native State of New Hampshire was one of those in the Union which has passed the resolution approving the principles of the movement; making a total of 17 to date and he voiced the hope that Maine would next Winter take similar action.

The Professor briefly referred to the history of the atomic bomb and its possible effect upon society and remarked that "the manufacture of the atomic bomb can be more easily detected than that of other weapons."

The scholarly address was fully appreciated by Rockland Rotarians who regret Mr. Holden will soon return to his home in Hanover but it is hoped another season will find him among the "summer delegates" who spend their way to Hotel Rockland each Friday.

Raymond Perry had charge of the musical program assisted by Stafford Congdon as pianist. Visiting Rotarians were—Harry Thompson, Francis Rice, Frank E. Poland and Walter Barns of Boston; Orrin Cocks, Wellsboro, Pennsylvania; Harold C. Haskell, Wilmington, Del.; J. G. Wandwell, Myerstown, Penn.; W. L. Bennett, Quebec, Canada and Percy R. Keller and Gilbert Harmon of Camden.

Next week the Club will participate in the national program advocated by the War Department relating to volunteer enlistments in the army. A high ranking officer will address the organization and his talk will be illustrated by official films from Washington.

"DEADPAN" HERE TO STAY
Press Herald Pays Respects To Salesgirls Who Are Curt and Impolite

Under the caption: "Soft spoken salesgirls Few and Far Between," the Press Herald prints the following story:

"Something is happening to the American working-woman. She is fast losing her femininity." "The girls who hold down the small jobs today are mainly deadpans."

"It's as true in the small towns as in the cities. They look at you with vacant eyes as they take your order or your money. They give with one curt word an answer which could be supplied in a friendly fashion with just a phrase or sentence."

There is nothing soft or gentle in their manner or their voices. They look you over with cold eyes or stare right through you. The people they serve aren't people to them and they aren't even faintly interested in trying to be helpful or courteous.

"They're not all like that, of course. But the ones who are agreeable and polite and who take the trouble to smile, to say 'Thank you' or 'I'm sorry,' and to look at the customer while he is talking are rare enough to stick in your memory."

"During the war we excused the rude deadpans by saying, 'Well, help is hard to get. Everybody is working under a strain.'"

"We thought it was just a temporary thing—a phenomenon of wartime."

"But it appears that the deadpan working-woman is here to stay, though she certainly isn't adding anything to the business world."

When Saturday Comes

A More Experienced High School Football Team Will Make the Trip To Brewer

(By Leo Connellan)
Come Saturday, Sept. 14, Rockland High will invade Brewer and pit its aggressive eleven against the fine squad that is the Brewer team.

With the Rockland squad this year, are two veterans of World War II, who played for the orange and black before entering service. These boys, Charles Philbrook and Perley Axtel, are most welcome, and it is hoped that once again in the old form, they will add to Rockland's scores, as well they did when last they played.

Mr. Brown and Coach McDougal, who are putting the Rockland squad in shape, are men who sincerely know their stuff and are men well adapted to the handling of High School boys. They also came to Rockland, recently, from the Service.

Many lettermen are returning, and many others from last year's squad. This year many experienced veterans will play rather than the green inexperienced boys of years gone by.

This year, quite different from other years, a captain will be voted upon by the various school squads—a permanent captain, who will not only be leading the squad in certain games, as in the past, but definitely every game. Well can we look forward to a brilliant football season in '46.

WHITE-SMITH WEDDING

Miss Joan Smith, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Dana H. Smith, Sr., of Thomaston, became the bride of David W. White, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. White of Warren at the Congregational Church Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

This And That

This is about the time of year when corn pudding is popular. The following is an excellent recipe:

Two eggs, four cups of canned corn or cut from the cob, two tablespoons of flour, one tablespoon of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, pinch or good shake of pepper, one cup sweet milk, one tablespoon of corn oil or oil.

Mix corn with dry ingredients, add well beaten egg yolks, oil or butter and milk. Then fold in the beaten stiff whites of eggs. Bake in a dish well filled and set in dish of water. Cook until a knife inserted comes out clean and serve at once with ham or chops. Other vegetables not needed.

This modern world is an age of irritation. Can we take pride in the peace conferences? I say no. Have we established false gods? I fear we have. Accardi Interviewed

Former Rockland Man In War Assets Broadcast Last Sunday

The radio broadcast of the War Administration over station WCAU Sunday afternoon, with Major General Norman D. Cota as guest, would have been of special interest to local listeners due to the fact that one of the persons interviewed was James Accardi, a former Rockland boy, now of the Accardi Corrugated Box Company located at 724 Cornhill street, Philadelphia. Because of its extreme length the broadcast cannot be published by this paper in full, but the following is a section in which Mr. Accardi is quoted:

Gen. Cota: In which branch of the service were you?

Accardi: I served under you in the 26th Division.

General: You don't know how happy it makes me to meet you personally. I'm mighty proud of every man who served in the 26th.

Accardi: That works both ways, General. We were mighty proud to serve under your excellent command.

General: Are you married, Accardi?

Accardi: Yes, sir, I am and I have two children.

General: That's fine—Suppose you tell me something about yourself before you entered the service.

Accardi: I was established in the Corrugated Box Business when I was drafted. So I closed up shop and went out of business for the 22 months I was in service.

General: Was it your idea to open your business again upon your discharge?

Accardi: Yes, sir, I looked into the possibilities I had learned about the opportunities veterans had for buying surplus merchandise, before I left the service.

General: Suppose you tell us in your own words just how you went about making your purchases.

Accardi: In the first place, I knew definitely that paper products was what I wanted. I contacted the local War Assets Administration on the eighth floor of the Lafayette building at Fifth and Chestnut streets, and was certified for that particular item. Later, through newspaper ads and through the WAA office I received notification of location of sale and at what time.

General: Tell us what happened at the first sale you attended.

Accardi: It was a site sale at the Government warehouse at Fifth and Clearfield street, in Philadelphia. I entered the salesroom and was approached by one of the salesmen who asked what items I was looking for. I told him corrugated boxes—showed him my veterans preference certificate and he showed me the samples on display. I was given an order blank and, as all the samples were price-tagged, I had no difficulty in filling it out.

General: Did you get the material you ordered at the sale?

Accardi: Yes, sir, I did. At that particular sale, the date on my certificate established my priority, but in all other sales in which I participated it was a case of first come, first served.

General: Did you encounter any red tape or needless delays in getting what you wanted?

Accardi: Not nearly as much as I had expected. I suppose that was because I knew what I wanted before I got there and was certified to buy it. After putting in my order, I waited to find if they had the items and, if they did, I gave my check for the merchandise. I was then sent to the traffic department to report the sale and was asked how I wanted the material delivered.

In most instances, I was told then and there when I could pick it up. Once or twice I had to wait from three days to a week for such notification, but never longer.

General: How did you take delivery of your purchases?

Accardi: I hired a truck and the material was loaded by the war assets administration without cost.

General: Have you been able to purchase enough merchandise to re-establish your own business?

Accardi: I have, General. I now employ five men and I was able to buy my material reasonably enough to make a profit in my business.

General: When did you make your first purchase of corrugated boxes?

Accardi: The early part of this year.

General: Have you found any improvements in subsequent sales?

Accardi: Yes, I have, General. In the first sales I attended, people other than veterans were allowed in and there was some confusion, but with the new set up, veterans with certificates only, are allowed to enter such sales for specific items of merchandise usually can buy what they are certified for.

General: Thank you, Accardi. I'm happy to know that you have profited through the sale of surplus property. By helping yourself, you have helped others to re-employment in peacetime businesses or industries.

Your City Government

By Carl Moran

(Sixth Installment)

The City Debt
The City of Rockland started in debt, and has always been in debt. During the first year of existence as a City, bills incurred by the preceding town of government, (of which the City had no record) kept coming in for payment; as a result, the ending of the first municipal year in March 1855 found our City $23,000 in debt. Still the old town bills came in; expenses in getting started had to be paid; as a consequence, the City debt increased every year to 1860 when it amounted to $42,000.

Then came the Civil War, and bounties paid for service; by 1865 our debt was $205,000. It then decreased slightly each year to 1869, and then—

The idea of using public money to build railroads swept this area; the cities of Rockland and Bath, and intervening towns, sold their bonds to get the railroad built from Bath to Rockland. By 1878 our city debt had reached the stupendous total of $981,000.

In 1879 a very peculiar form of finance began. The city practically entered the banking business, receiving funds and issuing therefore "Certificates of Deposit." These were in effect interest-bearing demand deposits; it is difficult to conceive of anything more dangerous to the City's financial structure. To cap the climax, the city proceeded to spend that money for current expenses, instead of reserving it to pay off debt.

By 1880 we had lopped off less than $100,000 in 12 years, the debt then being $838,000. Fortunately some recovery was made on the railroad fiasco, but still failing to pay off debt, the city opened the 20th century in 1900 owing $475,000.

By 1910 our debt had been reduced only to $383,000; still much too slow a rate of reduction, necessitating re-issue of bonds and still more money to pay. During the next 10 years there practically no debt reduction when 1920 arrived our debt was $370,000.

In 1924 we issued new bonds, partly to pay for re-modeling the High School, but also to pay off these "Certificates of indebtedness" as a result, our debt rose to $533,000 by 1926. By 1929 it had increased to $541,000.

In 1929 the depression broke. This caught in a very poor financial shape, our debt rose to $608,000 in 1933 as tax collections failed and our relief fund sources dried up. The ridiculous WPA came to Rockland's rescue just in the nick of time. The WPA only undertook projects approved of by the local city government. Unfortunately, however, Rockland had no Planning Commission and no plans; therefore the Rockland relief projects were of temporary instead of permanent type. Many cities were forehanded and had plans; those cities utilized relief funds to build new school buildings, new sewer systems, and the like, and so on. Rockland, we were so interested in whether the Republicans or Democrats won, that we "fiddled while Rome burned" and lost those opportunities which other cities grasped.

Our debt stood at $495,000 in 1940—more than we owed in 1900. Then came World War II which produced three favorable factors for debt retirement. First, people had jobs, so they could pay their back taxes, which was a windfall on the income side. Second, the war removed one big expense—the relief load. Third, it was impossible to obtain materials or labor for repairs and maintenance; we couldn't spend that money; however, since our debt building, streets, sidewalks, etc) and our equipment (motor apparatus for fire and public works departments, etc) fell to a sad state, and much more money will be required to repair and replace now, that money was certainly not "saved." An efficient business would enter that money in its books as a liability for deferred maintenance and replacements.

As of Oct. 31, 1945 (the end of the last fiscal year,) our debt amounted to $312,200 (divided $292,200 bonds and $20,000 notes,) which was only $39,000 less than the legal borrowing capacity of the city. At that time our Sinking Fund Reserve amounted to $24,365.45.

Our next bonds are due to be paid next year (Jan. 1, 1947); the amount is $32,500. We have been and are now paying off bonds due in 1948. Had those bonds contained a callable provision they could have been refunded at a much lower rate, but our city officials overlooked that one; that little oversight has cost several thousand dollars of interest money. Also, these bonds were due with legal bonds outstanding and unpaid for 75 years, being refunding issues of bonds originally issued in 1872; any one who wishes to figure the astronomical amount of interest we have paid on these bonds will have a full realization of the lack of financial planning under which Rockland has suffered.

In 1948 another batch of bonds, amounting to $27,600, comes due; we are paying 5% interest on them. Bonds thereafter coming due amount to $18,000 in 1949, $15,800 in 1950, $40,000 in 1951, $13,000 in 1952, $25,000 in 1953, $5,000 in 1954;

SOME RANDOM RECOLLECTIONS

By J. E. Rhodes, 2d

Senator William F. Frye had a well rounded career in public life in Maine before he graduated into the national arena. He had served as Mayor of Lewiston, as Representative from Lewiston in the Maine Legislature, and as Attorney General of Maine. He was nominated for Governor from the Second Maine District in 1870, to succeed Samuel P. Morrill, whom he defeated for the nomination, and he was elected.

I do not think that Frye as a Congressman ever had the intimate association with Blaine that Hale had as a Congressman. I heard him say once that although Blaine was speaker of the House when he entered Congress, his only committee assignment was to Committee on Claims, which was not regarded as a particularly desirable assignment.

He served on the House from 1871 to 1881, when he went to the Senate. It is said that if he had remained in the House he undoubtedly would have been Speaker of the House during the Forty-seventh Congress, from 1881 to 1883.

As already noted, he was a candidate against Hale for the Senate in 1881, and Hale won out. Just at that time however, James G. Blaine resigned as Senator from Maine to become the Secretary of State in the administration of President Garfield, and March 18, 1881, he was elected to the Senate to succeed Blaine. He was, therefore, just two weeks behind Senator Hale in getting there.

Senator Frye was an entirely different personality from Senator Hale. He was not a large man physically, but he was alert and gave the impression of power, force and virility. His movements were active, and it always appeared that he was going somewhere with a very definite aim. He was a fine orator, and his direct talk. He was in constant demand as a campaign speaker all over the country.

His great honor came in 1886, when he was elected president pro tempore of the Senate. Under the Constitution, the President of the United States presides over the Senate, but the Senate itself elects its president pro tempore who presides over the Senate in the absence of the Vice President, and when the Vice President is exercising the office of President of the United States. Formerly the president pro tempore of the Senate was in the line of succession to the Presidency, but this was altered by the Presidential Succession Act, passed about 1885, I believe, when the succession was changed to the Secretary of State and the other Cabinet officers in line.

THE "KNOW HOW" CLUB

Former Member Expresses Her Thanks For Kindness Shown At "Mother Martins"

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—In going over some old papers I came across a picture of the first "Know How Club." It was taken a long time ago and it took me away back to my childhood.

I wonder if some of the other girls remember the good times we had at Martin's Corner. We used to meet once a week and Mother Martin taught us so many useful things. Good manners, cooking, sewing, how to keep and care for a home and many other things.

We had so many things given us to help us in our work, so many kind people gave articles for which we were very grateful. One of the very thoughtful ones was our own beloved Miss Marcia Farwell. She sent us material, thread, bags of silk mill ends, needles, etc. In fact we still have a lovely needle case she gave us. It came from Abbot's ford and has a picture of Floors Castle on it, and we prize it very highly.

Not only was Miss Farwell so good to the Know How Club but I think many families in Rockland can say "Thank You" and "God bless you" for her many kind deeds. These were truly happy days and I cherish them among my fondest memories. And so I want to say "Thank You" to all those kind friends who were so thoughtful and to Mother Martin for her love and patience in teaching us. God bless you all.

Funds For "Seeders"

Com'r Reed Says State Does Not Have Nearly Enough Available

Declaring that the protection of egg bearing lobsters was the best possible way that his department could help safeguard Maine's $15,000,000 lobster industry, Sea and Shore Fisheries Commissioner, Richard E. Reed said in Rockport yesterday that he would like to have the fishermen and dealers provide funds to purchase and properly release every "seeder" caught in Maine waters or brought in from Canada.

Such funds could be raised through increased license fees or a voluntary tax on production and then we could adequately put a stop to the destruction of billions of eggs that has been going on all along the coast for many years, Reed said.

In reviewing the lobster propagation season Reed said that his department was already handicapped by funds and that only $7000 could be budgeted for the

Two Eighteenth Century Documents Relating To The Fox Islands

The Courier-Gazette's thanks go to Mrs. Julian Coolidge who sends from North Haven the following copies of documents uncovered among old files by a judge of the Circuit Court of Massachusetts, June the 26th, 1725.

Daniel Gould of full age Testifyeth & Declareth That he being Master of the Schooner Mary belonging to Marblehead on a fishing voyage near a place called Fox Island near Penobscot on the 22th day of June 1724. A number of Indians with one Frenchman who sd his name was Casten came on board sd Schooner in Canoes in an hostile manner and shot & wounded three more, of which said Company they carried four into Penobscot from thence three of them to Quebec where the French there received the Indians with manifestations of Great Joy.

Reed said that most dealers and fishermen deplore the practice of scrubbing eggs from seed lobsters but that when the loss they must take is really serious anything can happen.

He said that under the present set-up his department buys the egg bearing females, cuts a slit in the tail lobsters and releases them. These lobsters immediately become the property of the State and if they are caught and sold heavy penalties are prescribed for the violators.

"We are trying but our efforts are entirely inadequate and only because we lack funds to do the job right."

Almost Two Years

Before Men's Suits Will Be Plentiful—Shirt Scarcity Another Year

Shoo the moths out of that suit, says a Washington Associated Press dispatch. Two years, says a Washington Associated Press dispatch.

A Civilian Production Administration man told a reporter that these are the bare facts on men's clothes: Fifteen million men still will be hunting suits on Dec. 31, 1946. Not until 1948 will suits be plentiful enough for men to be choosy.

The shirt scarcity will last for a year.

There'll be a shorts shortage for six to 12 months.

Yes, sighed the CPA man, a trifle enviously, the girls are better off. That's because so many manufacturers say that there is more profit in turning out women's garments.

According to the CPA man, women now get almost all the slips and undergarments they need. Most of the city women are well fixed for hose, although some rural dwellers still have rayon and nylon troubles.

He said there are plenty of pretty suits for women but that they cost a pretty penny, too. Sports clothes have been so plentiful some shops are sending shipments back to the manufacturers.

If the girls have any real gripe, it's because there will be no real style changes until sometime after March 31, 1947. That's when CPA goes out of business.

Alvalene (Pierson) Karlsson Of St. George Playing Important Role In New York Politics

A Republican organization guide, "So You're a Republican," for prospective party workers in New York has just been published as the first in a series of guide booklets by service department of the Republican Review, a new monthly publication of Republican information for New York City to appear early in September.

The author of the booklet is Alvalene (Pierson) Karlsson, editor of the Republican Review, at present in charge of the mailing campaign for the election of Frederick E. Van der Bilt to the Congressional District. For several years she has been an election inspector and as an election district captain she has worked in many campaigns in recent years. She was co-moderator of the first Republican Open Forum in New York City June 5. She has been a vice president of the Young Women's Republican Club of New York, and is now a member of its Board of Governors.

The sixteen page booklet gives an outline of the Republican party organization as it may be found in New York City, describing the functions of the voter, party worker, inspector, watcher, challenger, captain, county committeeman, assembly district leader, county leader, and the assembly district club. Some Historic Homes

Waldoboro Has Many Which Were Built A Long Time Ago

A meeting of the Waldoboro Historical Society was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stenger, Main street, with 25 present. Mrs. F. A. Brummitt, the newly-elected president, presided. Mrs. Frances Storer, the secretary, reported the gift of two books, Eaton's Annals of Thomaston and Warren, and the Report of Centennial Celebration of 1876 in Waldoboro, donated by Mrs. Louise Bliss Miller.

The subject for the evening was Old Houses of Waldoboro, in which various members gave accounts. Miss Dora Gay read a paper on the old Smouse House, oldest in town. It was built about 170 years ago by David Hotzapple, who emigrated from Germany, and is located on the farm owned now by Millard Winchenbach, on the west side of the river. A family by the name of Smouse owned and occupied it for some years.

Fred Mathews gave an account of the Ewell house on Friendship street, describing the architecture and early owners.

Miss Dorothea Waltz told about her home on Jefferson street, once the residence of Rev. John William Starman who came to Waldoboro from Philadelphia and began his pastorate at the old German Lutheran Church in 1812.

Mrs. Marion McRae and Miss Ada Winchenbach gave brief histories of their homes on Dutch Neck. Mrs. McRae's Summer home being the early property of the Waltz family of which she is a descendant.

Jasper J. Stahl told of the various owners of his colonial home on Friendship street, its interior and exterior architecture and history.

Miss Grace York, whose home on Main street now owned by her mother, Mrs. Dora Howard York, and purchased by her grandfather, Albert Howard about 80 years ago, is one of the oldest residences in town. In 1844, St. George Lodge, P.A.M., of Warren met in this house before the present King Solomon's Lodge was chartered and the masonic members met in this town alternate years with the town of Warren.

The society will meet next time at the home of Mrs. F. A. Brummitt on Friendship street and the host will be her brother, Fred Mathews.

Plenty Of Herring

Down East Factories Receiving More Than They Can Handle

The sardine herring run in the Deer Island N. B. district during the last few weeks has been so good that New Brunswick and Maine factories have not been able to handle all the fish offered by the welmen.

The plants have been operating at peak production for the last two weeks, but owners have declared that lack of trained help has been holding up production. More women packers are reported needed in practically all plants.

The situation in Eastport and other Maine towns is reported to be discouraging, in that only limited quantities of fish can be handled although the plants are operating full time. Weirs at Deer Island, Campobello, Grand Manan and along the mainland shore of Charlotte County have been "full of fish" for the last three weeks.

It has been an ordinary occurrence for fishermen to have from 25 to 50 hogheads of herring at one time, and the price has remained firm at $15 a hoghead.

Eastport canneries alone received more than 3,000 hogheads of sardines last week from fishermen of Deer Island, Campobello, Grand Manan and Perry Shore. At Lubec, Robinson and Pembroke receipts of fish were correspondingly heavy.

Former Union Man

Hazen Ayer Appointed Chairman of Publicity Committee In Big Drive

Hazen H. Ayer of Boston, has been appointed chairman of the University of Maine Union Building Fund Publicity Committee according to an announcement by Raymond H. O. P. A. Approves An Increase Of $1.20 A Case For The Canners

O. P. A. approved a $1.20 a case increase today for canners of Maine sardines and said it will raise retail prices two and four cents on one-quarter and three-quarter pound cans respectively.

The increase is the same for cases of 100 one-quarter pound cans and those of 48 three-quarter pound cans. O. P. A. said the price rise for canners became effective Wednesday and will for retailers when the first shipment is received after the suppliers' price has gone up.

O. P. A. said the increase is necessary to permit the industry its peacetime percentage on net worth in the face of prospective decline in this year's catch, and to offset approved wage increase granted by part of the industry. The agency estimated this year's supply at about 60 percent of last year's production.

The agency said a former 30 cents a case price increase permitted on sardines canned west of the Penobscot River or outside Maine is removed since the new general increase make it unnecessary.

Argentina estimates it produced 139,770 tons of onions this year.
